

CATAP Webinar Series

Behavioural Threat Assessment & Management: Essential Elements for Effective Practice

Guest Speaker:
Dr. Gene Deisinger

Key Points:

Organizations must implement & operate a systematic process that: Utilizes an effective & relevant multi-disciplinary approach, capable of addressing all threats; Enables coordinated & timely awareness of developing concerns through active engagement; Facilitates a thorough & contextual assessment; Implements proactive & integrated case management strategies; Assesses, monitors, & manages cases on a longitudinal basis; Conducts practices in accordance with relevant laws, policies, & standards of practice; Adapts to challenges & changing needs.

TUESDAY

July

28

10 a.m. – Noon PST
(1 p.m. – 3 p.m. EST)

Cost: FREE

Register
Online @

<https://catap.ca/Event-Registration>

Professionals from a wide range of organizations (e.g. schools, campuses, healthcare systems, corporate settings, etc.) are increasingly dealing with situations involving persons who engage in threatening, aberrant, or concerning behaviours. Such persons can include current or former students, patients, customers, or employees; those in current or former relationships with them; contractors or vendors; & other persons not affiliated with the organization. Their behaviours may range from tactics of bullying & intimidation, to stalking & harassment, to acts of violence that devastate a school, campus, workplace, family, or community. Incidents from around the world have underscored the ongoing need for collaborative & integrated strategies to prevent violence where possible, & to mitigate risk of harm where necessary.

Many organizations are implementing Threat Assessment & Management processes to enhance their response to complex situations. Over the past 30 years, there have been major developments in the science & practice of the prevention of targeted violence, & in the effective use of multidisciplinary processes to identify, assess & manage cases. This session will outline the essential elements of effective threat management processes, discuss strategies for implementation & enhancement of those elements in accordance with research & contemporary standards of practice.

- ✓ Live events;
- ✓ New topics each month;
- ✓ Participate from work, home or on the go!
- ✓ View on PC, Mac, iPad, iPhone, or Android.
- ✓ Select Webinar completion may count toward CATAP certification.

